Rev. Matthew J. Flaherty, pastor of St. Agnes church, has set Sunday, the first day of Arlington's Old Home Week, for the raising of the first flag on the staff in front of the Parochial School. For speakers at this ceremony, which will take place at two in the afternoon, Senator David I. Walsh has been secured as a speaker to represent the civil side of life, and General Edward Logan to represent the military. Arthur P. Wyman, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, will preside. The children of the school will sing and the Arlington Post of the American Legion, will also take part in the exercises. The public is invited to attend this ceremony, which will take place on the school lawn if the weather is fair and in the hall if it is stormy. The Legion will form for escort at the corner of Medford and Chestnut streets at half past one.

BARBARA HATCH
in "Rain"

Miss Olive Towle, head of the Elwot Dance Studio, presented her pupils in their annual recital of dance, song, novelties and readings Tuesday evening, in the Robbins Memorial Town Hall, before a very large number of friends and parents.

The program was given in a most unique manner, the theme being "The Crystal Gazer". The first act was in the Garden of Eden, the famous child dancer, whose part was taken by Barbara Hatch. A party was held in honor of her fifth birthday. The guests were bidden to the event and requested to dance as they entered the garden, which was attractive with benches and lattice-work arch. As the curtain rose a group of boys and girls were playing games and a pretty dance in interpretation of Blind Man's Buff was given by them. The baby of the evening was little Gladys Spaulding, and her number, "Gladys

Memorial Day Number

TWO HUNDRED ATTEND LEGION'S DISTRICT MEETING

Over two hundred were present at the pre-Memorial Day district meeting held under the auspices of the local post of the American Legion in Associates Hall, Monday evening. Legionnaires from Winchester, Somerville and Woburn, as well as Arlington, were present to see and hear a very interesting program and eat a very good dinner, provided by the Hardy Catering Company. Commander C. J. Beaudet and his staff formed an informal reception committee, which greeted the many guests.

The principal speaker of the evening was Thomas F. Quinn of Natick, chairman of the speakers' bureau of the 1930 National Convention. He spoke at length on the approaching convention and the necessity of individual hard work on the part of each post.

Commander Beaudet presided, but soon turned the meeting over to W. Allen Wilde, the district commander. As usual, members of the local post, G. A. R., were invited guests. There are only three left now who are able to attend such functions. These are Past Commanders Alfred H. Knowles and George Clark and Commander George H. Averill. They all spoke a few words in response to an enthusiastic ovation.

Motion pictures of the workings of the Boston Fire Department took up a large portion of the evening in a very enjoyable and interesting fashion. Capt. James J. Donovan, aid to the Fire Commissioner, was at the motion picture projector. He explained the film as it progressed and thus added greatly to the interest.

Flag Day is the fourteenth of June, but the local lodge of Elks will not hold its exercises until Sunday, the following day, on the lawn before the Elks Home, opposite the Baptist church.

MANY ATTEND MEMORIAL SERVICE AT FIRST PARISH

There was an unusually large attendance at the Memorial Service held Sunday morning at the First Parish church. There were four members of the G. A. R., who were escorted from G. A. R. Hall by the Legion Drum Corps, an unusually large delegation from the Legion, the Spanish-American War Veterans, the Auxiliaries, and the Relief Corps.

The service was a very impressive one. Indeed, one of the veterans was heard to say that it was the most impressive he had ever attended. Particularly lovely was the music, which had been chosen especially for the occasion. The prelude was "Old Time Songs". Trumpet selections played by Cleon Hopkins were "Medley of Patriotic Airs", arranged by Mr. Hopkins, and "Tenting Tonight". The anthems were "Land of Our Hearts", Chadwick, and "Soldier Rest", with trumpet obligato, Scott. Miss Evelyn McNamara sang "Hymn of Peace" as an offertory solo.

The theme taken by the minister of the church, Rev. John Nicol Mark, for his sermon was "Honoring the Past by Serving the Future". He said that it is a good thing for us to look back. "Most of us do not look back often enough. The present engrosses us. The passing moments absorb us. The duties and engagements and pleasures and tasks of the day crowd in upon us and blind our eyes to everything but the thing that now is."

"We need," he said, "the long view backward and a long view forward. It is the long view which gives us poise and courage, patience and hope. We do well when we look back to Abraham Lincoln and the perilous times of the Civil War."

Mr. Mark then outlined the history of the past three hundred years, emphasizing particularly the aims and ideals of our forefathers — the story of the struggle for democratic ideals in our own land. "Memorial Day," he said, "recalls one chapter of the story and is significant."

TRINITY'S FIRST YOUTH BANQUET PROVES SUCCESS

The first youth banquet of Trinity Baptist church, sponsored by the Christian Endeavor and held last Friday evening in the church parlors, was a great success. Among the one hundred and forty-four young people attending were representatives of all of the nineteen young people's organizations in the church.

The room was decorated in red and white, with the menu of the delicious supper printed in silver on red. Willard Baird was general chairman of the committee, with Charles Buchanan in charge of the program and finances; Mrs. Jennie Rourke, banquet, and Kenneth Draper, publicity. The hostesses were Mrs. Moses Adams, Mrs. William Baird, Mrs. Robert Buchanan, Mrs. Harry Edwards, Mrs. John Hilson, Mrs. Lillian Pherson and Mrs. George F. Peters.

Seated at the guest table with the speakers were Rev. and Mrs. James E. Norcross, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Corcoran, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Foss, Mr. and Mrs. George Ed Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Marsters, and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Atwood.

Charles Buchanan acted as toastmaster. The community singing was led by C. H. Peterson, who also played a medley of tunes as a piano solo. The youth orchestra played a medley. Mr. Peterson and Charles Farrow played a piano duet. Varnum S. Pedrick gave accordion and vocal solos and Kenneth Draper, trumpet solos. Miss Betty Rourke gave a recitation, "Molly".

The pastor emeritus, Mr. Norcross, addressed the young people, after which the pastor, Rev. Gordon E. Bigelow, spoke, taking as his topic, "Play Ball". He suggested the formation of a youth cabinet, to contain a representative of each of the nineteen organizations. This idea was so enthusiastically endorsed that it will undoubtedly be carried out in the fall.

The program closed with the tapping of the new officers of the Christian Endeavor and their installation at a candlelight service, led by Mr. Bigelow. The officers are: president, Willard Baird; first vice-president, Irma Hutchins; second vice-president, John Jones; recording secretary, Barbara Buchanan; corresponding secretary, Betty Rourke; treasurer, George Chalmers; chairman of activities, Charles Buchanan; reception, Isabel Adams; missionary, Edna Campbell.

MRS. PARMENTER ELECTED GIRL SCOUT COMMISSIONER

The annual business meeting of the Girl Scout Council was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Harold Yeames. Mrs. Yeames presented her resignation as Commissioner as she is to be Deputy Commissioner of the Metropolitan Division.

The following officers were elected: Commissioner, Mrs. Robert Parmenter; 1st Deputy Commissioner, Mrs. Herman Gammons; 2nd Deputy Commissioner, Mrs. Franklin P. Hawkes; Secretary, Mrs. F. Leroy Eames; Treasurer, Mrs. Joseph P. McCann.

Following the business, a social hour was enjoyed, refreshments being served by the hostess.

Rev. and Mrs. John Nicol Mark attended on Wednesday evening the annual meeting of the Tufts College Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, held at Goddard Chapel, Tufts College.

The project for a new high school unit, involving an initial expenditure of $389,194, went through the special Town Meeting Monday evening in Robbins Memorial Town Hall without a breath of opposition. This was the most startling incident of the evening.

The general feeling before the meeting seemed to be that these plans called scheme "C" in the report sent out to the town meeting members by the Investigating Committee on New High School Accommodations, would finally pass with a substantial majority. But it was not expected that the vote would be unanimous, nor that the plans would be accepted without discussion.

The Moderator, Curtis H. Waterman, read the recommendation of the Finance Committee, which was in the form of a motion in the affirmative, appropriating the sum needed for the new unit, waited a moment for discussion, and then put the question to a vote. The ayes were not loud, so those in favor braced themselves for a deafening chorus of noes when those opposed were asked to express themselves. But there was not a sound. There was dead silence for at least three seconds and then the crowd that had jammed the hall expecting a battle over this article, broke into a roar of laughter. It was some moments before the Moderator could make himself heard to put the last article in the warrant to a vote.

Uphold Finance Committee
The Finance Committee of Twenty-One was upheld on every one of the eleven articles which brought up new business. Article 1, "To hear and act upon the report of the Finance Committee and other committees heretofore appointed" was placed upon the table as a matter of form after the meeting had been called to order.

Four hundred dollars was appropriated for research work in the Board of Health for mosquito control. Six hundred and fifty dollars was voted for the water pipes and maintenance of the new high school playground. The sale of the plot of land at the corner of Summer street and Orient avenue was authorized with no opposition.

Article 6, which called upon the town to change the names of a number of different streets, evoked the most spirited discussion of the evening. The Finance Committee had recommended that the streets be not changed at this time, so as to throw the thing open to a complete discussion on the Town Hall floor. Petitions, it was said, had been presented by residents of the streets whose names were to be changed, asking that no changes be made. Owners of property in streets, whose names it was proposed to change, had objected to the project.

Arthur P. Wyman, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, presented a substitute motion which called for the changing of the names as described in the warrant. The following were the changes suggested: Albemarle street, to Gloucester street; Park avenue Extension, to Park avenue; Park street, to McCormack street; Wyman terrace, to Durgin road; Spring street, to Eastern avenue; Lakehill avenue, to Cameron road; Bacon street, to Kent street; Mill Lane, to Clinton street; Milton street, to Butterfield street; Newcomb street, to Squire road; Newman way, to Sprague road; Newton road, to Yorktown road; or take any action relating to all or any of the foregoing.

No Charges in Street Names
It was suggested that the streets be named after fallen heroes. After considerable discussion, Mr. Wyman's substitute motion was lost. William C. Drupet presented another substitute motion at the close of a scathing speech. He suggested that a committee of three be appointed by the Moderator to pick out appropriate names for the several streets. His motion was lost by an overwhelming majority; so nothing at all was done about new names.

There was also considerable discussion on the purchase of the triangle at the junction of Broadway and Warren street. Walton H. Sears presented a substitute motion for the purchase of the land in spite of the Finance Committee's recommendation that the purchase should not be made because the price was too high, but his motion was lost.

The rest of the articles of the warrant went through without a word of opposition, and the meeting was adjourned at 9.30.

The appropriations made at this meeting totaled $391,694, making the total appropriations for the year, $2,789,921.13, and the estimated tax rate, $34.05.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Southall of Wollaston were visiting friends at the Heights on Sunday.

However, the spoils system is to a large part of the people an ideal. If a man helps to get you a job, it is a dirty trick not to help him. If you knew him in school, it is only friendship to shade a contract for him. On the prohibition question, he pointed out, there are at least nine different positions, each representing an ideal. How, he questioned, can you get a majority with that kind of patchwork? The only chance for a majority is to "cater in crooked ways" in order to glue enough scraps together. However, we should recognize that we are dealing, not with original sin, but with flashes of ideals.

Mr. Griffiths made a plea for neither condemnation of, nor agreement with differing groups, but rather for tolerance until some agreement can be worked out. He visualized a day when out of the conglomeration of ideas we can pick the best, with each group making its contribution; to the time when the brains of capital will be used for the welfare of men and when labor can recognize its dignity.

Greatest among the forces working for unity is the public school system. This, he said, rises above politics. In the greater cities there are more separate groups—the larger the cities the more distinct these become—and the problem is more difficult. Sometimes he thought he saw the future of America in "Able's Irish Rose". When we admit socially the best of any race they get two sets of ideals to compare with each other. It is on such bridges between groups that the future is being built.

A reformer, he said, should be able first of all to understand the other side, to realize that he is clashing with the prince of darkness, but with alternative ideals. Snobs, he said, were so convinced of their own superior excellence that they do not know the joys of mixing with people not of their kind.

It is not so simple, however, as a clash of ideals. There is a darker strain of theft, bribery and vice. The age-old struggle between materialism and altruism is at its fiercest in the cities. One problem of the self-seeking political machine is that so few people go into public life who are not self-seeking. He expressed the belief that it is possible by means of friendships to win offices without making compromises.

The political machine of the city, moreover, has its function. It will carry on the government until we in America have made up our minds what we want.

Mrs. Herbert W. Reed, president of the club, who presided at the meeting, said that Professor Griffiths had given his hearers much food for thought, and that she was sure they would try to serve the town by getting together and bringing in the different racial elements.

In answer to a question, Professor Griffiths said that, on the whole, he thought the direct primaries good, though some way should be found to stop spending money. In New York, he pointed out, there would be no contest for offices if there were no primaries. This was true, he added, in about half the states.

ISSUES STATEMENT ON OLD AGE ASSISTANCE BILL
The Massachusetts Civic Welfare Alliance of Boston issued recently a statement on the old age assistance bill that is pending in the Legislature.

The Alliance warns against millions of gold for state pensions that will never cease to flow. It estimates the amount at from fifteen to forty-five millions annually, basing its deductions upon certain known facts.

The statement alleges that cities and towns will be encouraged to give away money to a practical maximum by the reimbursement into their general treasuries of one-third from the state, and cautioned that the heavy taxation, recurring year after year, cannot fail to be a damper to progressive projects by acting like a continual leak in the treasury.

The Alliance insists that the grants of money to certain individuals after they have lived in the

GETTING ACQUAINTED WITH YOUR NEIGHBOR

Rev. John Nicol Mark

In an autobiography, however brief, there are certain fundamental factors that must be emphasized. First is Heredity and the second, Environment. These two factors go to produce the man. Character has none other from which to fashion itself.

I was born in Scotland. There is only one regret that goes with that fact and it is this: If I had been born over here I would have saved my passage money over. I was born in the town of Coatbridge, twelve miles from Glasgow, thirty miles from Edinburgh, twenty-three miles from Robert Burns' birthplace, and ten miles from the birthplace of Harry Lauder. I am therefore a lowlander, and am not able to talk the "two talks," meaning English and Gaelic.

I am a mixture of Scotch and Irish—my mother being a Montgomerie from the North of Ireland. My summer vacations for years (two weeks at most) were spent in Ireland. In the evenings in one of the Irish farmsteads our family would sit around the peat fire and listen to the tales of the housewives. It is worthwhile to visit Ireland. Just to smell the peat burning—a memory worth cherishing.

Money in Name

The name I received from my parents has always been pleasing to me—not because there is money in it—a Nicol and a Mark—the Nicol being more valuable than the Mark—but because of another association. When I hear other people proudly boast of their ancestry, that they are related to William the Conqueror or to those who came over on the Mayflower, I quietly remind them that if they but open their Bibles they will find this passage: "They prayed in the house of John Mark for Peter's release."

I recall how with much sorrow on my part my boy companions would greet me with this rhyme: "Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, hold the caddy till I get on," a mocking phrase which led me into many fist fights.

There were four boys in the family, three of whom have gone into the ministry and the fourth is a mining engineer in India. He had the privilege of speaking before the Arlington Rotary last summer on a visit to America.

Our home was adjacent to a lord's estate but we had no land of our own. We went into the woods on the estate. There I have been shot at frequently by the gamekeeper, who shot not to kill but with the determination of keeping us out of the woods.

I had the average grammar school education and one year at an Academy—then left school to enter the office of a large steel company, Coatbridge is the Pittsburgh of Scotland and has very many large iron and steel manufacturing companies.

My parents had wished that I go to college and become a minister, but a boy of thirteen does not always see the wisdom of parental advice. So off I started to earn my own living. I might have been a trusted, respectful clerk in his company's office today had not something happened which ended abruptly my office career. There was an English boy in the office and occasionally we had alterations about the merits of our two races. We had a fist fight on one occasion after I had recited Burns' poem about The Battle of Bannockburn—where the Scotch whipped the English, and my immediate chief, lacking a sense of humor, fired both of us.

Grocery and Provision Store

My parents were indignant at my humiliation (it was considered a terrible disgrace to be fired) and in their chagrin apprenticed me to the grocery business. For five years I slaved as an apprentice, beginning with a salary of one dollar a week. Then, at the age of eighteen, I started out with my brother, Tom, now minister of the Hawes Memorial Church in South Boston, to conduct a Grocery and Provision Shop.

My heart was not in the business, but in spite of that, we made a success of it. The hours were long and competition was keen. Two or three evenings a week the Mark brothers would walk (three miles each way) to a Technical School, where classes were conducted in English, Mathematics and so forth, and in that way we got our preparation for college. It was very difficult for a Scotch boy who had left school ever to get back into the channels that would lead to college. There is a certain inflexibility about Scotch life. It doesn't change easily, as perhaps illustrated by the Scotch prayer.

"O Lord, we pray that we may be right, for thou knowest we are very determined."

It was this inflexibility that influenced the members of this family to emigrate. My engineer brother had gone to New Zealand and my father was also there for his health. We sold our business, made arrangements for our passage and were ready to sail when a cablegram was received from my father advising us to stay at home because of depressed business conditions in New Zealand.

That changed the face of our fortunes and one by one the three Mark brothers found their way to America.

A Tribute to America

I want here to pay my tribute to America for the wonderful opportunity she afforded me in the field of education. The Meadville Theological School accepted my two brothers on probation and I was received into Alleghany College by passing an English test which consisted of writing all that I knew about Mary, Queen of Scots. What a question to hand to a Scotchman, especially a lowlander. I not only told in the paper what I knew about the royal lady, but also what I thought about her and all the Stuarts.

America has done for us what Scotland refused to do—given us an opportunity for higher education. I spent one year in Alleghany, then came to Tufts College, from which I graduated with my A. B. and B. D. degrees in 1916. During these years my brothers and I worked at our odd moments and not only cleared our expenses, but were able to send small sums home. We brought our mother and father over here, but their lives here were short. My father died at Saugus in 1914 and my mother died in Symmes Arlington Hospital the week after her three boys graduated from college.

Whatever qualities of stick-to-it-iveness we possess came from my mother, who was industrious and carried on a business for fifteen years while bringing up a family of four boys. She was a wonderful woman. It was her ambition that at least one of her sons should be a minister. Any talents of preaching or speaking we may possess came from my father, who had great natural ability as a speaker. He had been for years a lay preacher in the Wesleyan church and was an eloquent and forceful speaker.

In the World War

The rest of my story can be told briefly. I was minister of the church in East Lexington when this country entered the World War. I enlisted three weeks before war was declared as a Chaplain in the Navy and was called out in the first week of the war. I served at the Charlestown Navy Yard for three months, then was transferred to New York, where I became Chaplain of the Pelham Bay Naval Station, which became second in size in America.

It was a wonderful experience. My nine years as a business man was also of help in solving the many problems that face a Chaplain who is an intermediary between a young man just out of college, tween the enlisted men and the officers. I could spend an hour in relating my service experience.

After resigning from the Navy I served as minister in two textile centers—Uxbridge and Fall River, and then after having been in the Navy and "seen the world", I decided that the best place in all America was Arlington, and so here I am.

REBEKAHS GIVE SHOWER TO MISS HELEN PEPPARD

Miss Helen Peppard was thoroughly and pleasantly surprised last Saturday evening when she returned from Concord to her home, 934 Massachusetts avenue, to find awaiting her, fifty members of the F. Butler Lodge of Rebekahs of which she is a past noble grand. In the center of the room was a big yellow rose whose petals the guests showered on Miss Peppard. They presented her with many very lovely gifts, among which were china, silverware and linen.

Refreshments were served in the dining room which was decorated in yellow and white with the cake, also yellow and white, topped by a miniature bride and groom, the center of attraction. Mrs. Freeman W. Decker of Teel street played piano solos. The party was arranged by Mrs. Elizabeth Shilker, Mrs. Carrie Ayer and Mrs. Marie Finley.

Miss Peppard's engagement to Charles Smith was announced several weeks ago.

and Her Lamb", "took" immediately. "Sisters Two" was a pretty old fashioned glide dance number, and was well done by Joyce and Shirley Dunnet. The old time waltzes and toe dances, interspersed with jazz and novelty, were a feature of the program.

With the entrance of the Crystal Gazer, interpreted by Ethel Louise Pearce, act 2 opened. The theme of her dance was oriental, and the lithesome and difficult acrobatic motions were very well done by Miss Pearce. Together, Lola and the Crystal Gazer gaze into the crystal, which foretells what will become of the dancers in the future and the scenes they see in the crystal are enacted upon the stage in the second act.

"The Little Red School House", a musical reading, was given before the curtain, by Eleanor Ohlund, and was also, "A Perfect Little Lady", by Muriel Coyle.

"Two Little Girls in Blue" was well done by Eleanor and Theresa Guirleo. This selection, like some of the others, was an old time favorite. These were well received. Muriel Coyle, who appeared as soloist in "I can't do the sum", was commended. "Pink Lady", waltz number, was charmingly done by Barbara Tolman, who not only is an accomplished dancer, but is a violinist. She displayed her technique by playing as she danced. A delightful take-off of a sophisticated burlesque was given by Pauline Nutter in "A Cute Little Way of My Own". The "Chinese Lullaby", sung by Alice E. Goudie and danced

PRESIDENT REPORTS ON ROTARY CONVENTION

Charles H. Stevens, president of the Arlington Rotary, gave a very interesting report at the meeting of that organization held Wednesday noon at the Middlesex Sportsman's Association Clubhouse, on the district Rotary Convention, held at Worcester, recently.

After the singing of patriotic songs, Rev. John Nicol Mark spoke on "The Significance of Memorial Day". He said that, appreciating what the past has meant, we must resolve that wars shall cease to be a part of the means of settling our disputes. This, he said, is all in the spirit of Rotary, which has an international significance and so works for international amity.

MRS. DONALD M. BELCHER WINS STATE RUNNER-UP PRIZE

Even if Mrs. Donald M. Belcher of the Winchester Country Club, who lives on the corner of Old Mystic street and Hutchinson road, Arlington, was not successful in her final match for the Woman's State Golf Championship, she played superb golf throughout the week while eliminating other contenders, and carried home two lovely vases as a prize.

The strain of previous matches, particularly the gruelling contest with Mrs. E. H. Baker on Friday, the 23rd, her unlucky day, caused the Arlington golfer to be not quite at her best. Still, the match with Dorothy Richards in the final round on Saturday was sufficiently close so that if Mrs. Belcher had canned a few holeable putts, the results would have been in Arlington's favor. As it is, Miss Richards with her more powerful physique and the easier previous matches, is now State Champion by virtue of her victory of 3 up and 1 to play.

Naturally it was disappointing not to win the final and receive Massachusetts' greatest crown, yet Arlington can well be proud of a beautiful golfer capable of playing a superb game, sound in every respect, under the most trying circumstances. Her card, even on Saturday, was good enough for the difficult Salem Country Club, playing in many instances from the back tees—an 89 for seventeen holes. Her scores throughout the week were much better, reaching nearly perfect in the match with Mrs. Baker with a splendid 87. She equaled the Weston woman with her drives and through the green and exceeded with her short game the woman who has been supreme in Massachusetts golf for years.

To Honor the Brave

IT IS good to set apart a day to honor the memory of the men who fought in our nation's wars. They were brave men, following through the every-day discomforts of war and the horrors of battle the ideals which were theirs. For in each of the wars those dead we will honor today an ideal was held before the eyes of the men who went forth to fight and was implanted in the hearts of those who stayed at home.

The soldiers of the Civil War fought, some of them because slavery was to them an unbearable abomination, some because they believed the union must be preserved at any cost. In the Spanish-American War, men volunteered to rescue the suffering Cubans from the cruel dominion of Spain. Thirteen years ago they marched away to a war "to end war", a war to "save the world for democracy".

For these ideals and for the bravery with which they fought for them, we honor our soldier dead. Upon their graves we strew flowers and set the flag which was for them the emblem of these ideals.

But, seen through the eyes of the modern historian, to whom history is an affair of science, not of emotion, these wars take on a different aspect. The Civil War—this is a commonplace—was brought about by the economic differences of the North and South. If it was only to free the Cubans that the Spanish-American War was fought, then it need never have been. Spain, they say, had, before war was declared, signified her willingness to grant any demands the United States might make. She was even ready to withdraw entirely from Cuba.

The World War is still too close to us to be considered dispassionately, but even now there are historians—and among the allies at that—who deny that the blame for it belongs entirely to Germany. They find economic causes beyond the control of any one nation. That the "war to end war" closed with a peace designed to promote wars is common belief.

If the soldiers who fought these wars could have seen them with the eyes of their historians, they might never have marched out under high held banners, to the strains of patriotic marches. Men are more apt to fight for ideals than for world markets and oil fields.

This is no reason why we should fail to keep Memorial Day. On the contrary, it is a reason why we should pay to our dead higher honor than the strewing of flowers and the waving of flags. We should pay to them the deeper respect of the clear thinking and the good will toward others which will help to prevent another war. If we keep Memorial Day in this spirit, then can we truly say that these dead have not "died in vain".

Handwriting on the Wall

THE result of the Literary Digest straw vote on the Eighteenth Amendment is interesting but not conclusive. The large proportion of those who marked and returned the ballots sent them—4,806,464 out of 20,000,000—proves beyond any doubt the general interest in the question. Also, it may be said by the wet optimists to mean an increase in the number of their converts. This statement they would base on a comparison between the 1922 ballot when only 21% favored repeal and the one just completed when 40% voted for this action.

The dry who looks on the bright side might cite in answer the fifteen million and more who failed to mark their ballots. According to the Christian Science Monitor, it is axiomatic in practical politics that when no critical decision is pending the party in power tends to remain silent. If this is true, then the majority of these silent millions must feel that they are "sitting pretty", so why bother?

Perhaps it is this tendency to inertia on the part of the "top dog" that explains the fact that the actual ballots often fail to fulfill the prophecy of the straw vote. This was the case in 1922, when in spite of the fact that there were 39% for enforcement and 21% for repeal, three dries to one wet were sent to Washington in the following Congressional elections.

Moreover, the 29.11% who voted for modification cannot fairly be classed with the "wets". Modification would seem to mean the continued enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment with changes in the method of control. If those who hold such beliefs cannot be classed with the dries, certainly even less can they be ranked with the wets.

There is another phase of the question. The Digest describes its choice of those to whom ballots were sent as a "wholly impersonal drafting", and doubtless it was just that. On the other hand, it seems to be common report that there were comparatively few women who received ballots—and women are apt to vote dry. Also it is known that one Arlington man received four ballots—one for each of the classifications under which his occupations fall—and another, three. An ardent wet—and rumor has it that many of the anti-prohibitionists made every effort to secure as many ballots as possible—might be tempted to use more than one ballot if more were sent him.

Analysis by states shows that the dries have no need to worry. The most optimistic of the wets cannot so manoeuvre the vote as to show any chance of the necessary three-quarters of the states favoring repeal. Only eighteen states were more than forty per cent for repeal, while thirteen gave more than forty per cent for enforcement.

One jubilant wet calls the poll the "handwriting on the wall". If it be that, the scroll is a faint one. It may, however, serve as a warning to those opposed to the amendment's repeal to vote when the matter comes up on an actual ballot.

Particularly, should those in Massachusetts, where 57,876 voted for enforcement, 51,362 for modification and 96,133 for repeal, who wish to see the Baby Volstead Act continue in force remember to vote against its repeal at the November election.

"Open House"

NEXT WEEK Arlington will keep open house. The town will be ready to welcome not only former residents who return to renew old friendships, but visitors who come to make her acquaintance. She will look her neatest and best as a result of her citizens' observance of "clean up week" which is now in progress. Better still, there will be abroad a spirit of friendliness and a readiness to perform all possible acts of courtesy for our visitors.

On Sunday morning the churches will extend their welcome. Beginning with Sunday evening, the Tercentenary Committee has arranged a program of events, some one of which will have an appeal for practically every one. The climax of the celebration will be reached with the Historic Music Festival. This promises to be an unusual event, so unusual that it is considered one of the most interesting of the Tercentenary events in the state.

The glow of hospitality, which has already begun to pervade our town, will make the week one long to be remembered, both by the residents and visitors.

Here and There

The special Town Meeting is all over and we shall have a nice new high school, as well as mosquito control. To the residents in some sections of the town, one project is just about as important as the other. Both will probably mature at about the same time. The four hundred dollars appropriated for the mosquitoes is going toward research and not for direct extermination; so we shall probably find a few of the pesky critters about this summer. But in 1931 the Board of Health plans a determined campaign for eradication. It is expected, also, that the new high school will be ready for occupancy in that year.

Those hundreds who crowded the Town Hall Monday evening to see a display of fireworks must wait for the Sons of Italy this summer. The meeting was a complete frost as far as excitement was concerned, but it did produce a very happy solution and the appropriation of nearly $400,000. Not bad for an hour and a half's work.

The majority of the town meeting members and spectators seemed to be tickled to death at the outcome of the high school question, judging from the shout of laughter which went up when there was no opposition to the recommendation of the Finance Committee that the approximate $400,000 be spent. There is a strong feeling, however, that Waterman common is an excellent buy right now, for it is rumored that that railroad has good prospect of running the Boston and Maine out of business. On the other hand, the monkey wrench industry is in a decided slump from which there is no hope of recovery until March, 1931.

Those monkey wrenches were all off their nuts because there was no one on their toes to give them a good twist to clamp on the screws. It is this way: according to all reports, there actually was a large bloc, a fairly respectable organization, anyway, which had planned to offer enough competition to Article 11 to give the fight fans their money's worth. But the plan was to wait for the Chairman of the Investigating Committee on New High School Accommodations to explain his plan and then they would nail him to the cross, as was done at a previous meeting.

But when Moderator Waterman put the question, Mr. Barker, very wisely it turns out, kept his seat and let the thing ride, with the result that it rode right through all right. Those in favor were so surprised that they had just enough breath to utter a feeble and lady-like "aye", while those opposed were writhing on the canvass for the long count—only it was not so long. At any rate, the latter had to be carried to their corners at the bell.

We have it that the new High School Committee was a wee bit apprehensive about the inscription over the door of the new building which appeared on the architect's drawing of the new building's front, which was published on the front page of last week's Advocate. Said inscription announced, "Boys' High School". The committee itself, as well as several others who noticed the inscription, thought that there would be an uproar at that. The town is not yet ready to accept separate high schools for boys and girls, and might never be. The Committee knows that and was prepared to set any objections at ease by announcing the inscription a mistake, but the necessity never arose, and the high school special went roaring through on the green light.

Mr. Schwamb rose to a point of order in the discussion of the changing of the names of some of our streets, but Moderator Waterman said that anything within a half mile of the warrant article would not be considered irrelevant. The suggestion of Richard Powers that the new playground and athletic field in the rear of the High School be called Warren A. Peirce Field was not within ten miles of the warrant article then under discussion, but it got by just the same because of universal popular approval.

Warren A. Peirce was present in his seat at a town meeting member and received the honor which his colleagues bestowed upon him without batting an eye. Wild enthusiasm, however, does not run in the Peirce family. The old gentleman was pretty well pleased just the same. He can get just about what he wants in this town and deserves all he has received.

G. Bertram Washburn, chairman of the Finance Committee, brought up a nice point in the discussion of whether the town should buy the triangle of land at the junction of Broadway and Warren streets. He wanted to know how it was that the owner was asking $7,500 for the plot when it was assessed at only $2,200. He suggested that the Board of Assessors might find some other parcels of land here and there which could stand a rise in assessment.

Mr. Washburn's remarks drew a laugh at the time, but it is doubtful whether any of the local tax payers would be particularly delighted to have the value of their property raised any higher. In fact, there is a strong feeling that the Board of Assessors is not missing a trick when it comes to high appraisals. On the other hand, there may be room for inquiry as to the proper assessment of that little triangle.

Triangles are always worth looking into.

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction in the local post of the American Legion because of the recent action of the Board of Selectmen in favor of the Veterans of Foreign Wars carnival which now has its tents pitched on the Boston Elevated Company lot at Tufts street. The Legion is wrathful because the Vets were given the carnival permit before they were. The former was holding off so as not to interfere with "Old Home Week", and now they are mad. It was probably a mere oversight on the part of the Selectmen, but the Legion men are firmly convinced that the Veterans should be abolished, anyway.

Shorts, which are now attracting more attention to Dartmouth College than did Al Marsters, made a brief appearance in the Arlington High School Wednesday morning. Two brave but misguided spirits in abbreviated pants pranced into the building, but they were soon apprehended and dealt with very severely.

As soon as the two youngsters were notified that they were suspended pending an interview between their parents and the Superintendent of Schools, they came running down to the Advocate office to get their names in the paper. Well, the Advocate is playing a smart trick on them, for their names are not going into the paper at all. We regard their act as a cheap publicity trick, and they will not get what they want from us. So there!

SOPHISTICATED ONLOOKER.

Fifty Years Ago This Week

Decoration Day.—The rain of Friday afternoon was the means of giving to this section one of the most perfect days of any season for Decoration Day. The air was clear, the sky was bright, the streets were free from dust. The Fire Department was represented by its full force and made a display honorable to themselves and creditable to the town. Only about one half of the Veterans joined in the procession, the day and other imperative engagements forcing their absence, but they looked well and marched well.

Resignation.—There was a meeting of the Orthodox Congregational church Tuesday evening, to take action on the resignation of their pastor, Rev. J. Lewis Merrill. It was voted to lay the matter on the table for three months and to request the pastor to take a vacation for that period, the church supplying the pulpit in the meantime.

Business Change.—The dry and fancy goods store in the Bank Building has recently passed into the hands of Miss C. E. Russell, who has added to the stock the contents of her store in Boston, so that it now offers a very unusual stock to choose from.

Twenty-five Years Ago This Week

Up in Arms in Protest. For a month or two the Board of Health of Arlington has held meetings on an average of more than one each week, the matter under discussion being largely the keeping of swine in Arlington, and incidentally the disposal of swill and home offal. At a recent meeting a form of contract between the town and Selectman Warren W. Rawson by which Mr. Rawson was to take the swill at a specified price and the Board was to grant him the right to keep swine to the number of 500 on his farm for five years to come) was agreed to by Messrs. Fessenden and Stickney against the protest of Mr. Lamson. On Wednesday evening of this week that contract came up for final action, but was met by petitions signed by a great number of leading citizens of the town, protesting against the proposed action. As a result the board voted to advertise for bids for the house offal.

Last Saturday evening, while Mr. Hollis Gott of this town was horseback riding, his horse stepped on a greased rail on the corner of Boylston street and Massachusetts avenue, Boston, and came down on all fours. In this fall Mr. Gott had his right foot badly crushed, but he was lucky to escape with no more serious consequences of such a mishap.

Last Sunday the police laid low for some young men who had planned a baseball game in the vicinity of the sand pits off Broadway, but they got wind of the approach of the officers and made a "home run" in clearing the field, so no captures were made. But they were not quick enough to secure their coats and vests, so a goodly batch of these were gathered up and were taken to police headquarters to await the claims of their owners.

Miss Helen Taft gave a luncheon on Thursday in honor of Miss Margaret Howe Colman, whose marriage occurs next Wednesday evening.

Every moment of worry weakens the soul for its daily combat.

Sport Tips

Again the Arlington High School track team has brought a championship back to town—another large and handsome silver cup for the library. Coach Doc McCarty is doubly to be congratulated on the victory of his boys in the Mystic Valley Championships for this season there was real competition. In fact, before the meet the Boston newspaper guessers were not giving Arlington any more than a look in.

Watertown, the runner-up, was close, but she was closer than she might have been if it had not been for a regrettable accident in the last race, the relay. The Arlington team most certainly would have won if Linane, the third man, had not thought that he could come in on the pole with impunity when Arlington's lane was the fourth. Arlington was disqualified on his error—but never mind; the meet was won already.

In the forecast, which appeared in last week's Advocate and which was on the street before the meet, the local sport editor picked the winner of the meet and the runner-up successfully. The rating of the rest of the teams was not so close, but it is the first two which count.

It will be remembered that it was also stated that Coach McCarty had but one sure winner on his team and that man was Francis LeDoux.

That might have been considered a rash statement in view of the fact that LeDoux had not won a race this year, but his defeats have been at the hands of the very best in the state, and these were not running in the Mystic Valley.

As a matter of fact, there were three Arlington winners. Bill McCarty won the broad jump, Donald Hagerman captured the shot title and, as has been previously mentioned, LeDoux took the quarter mile. But those other two were in no wise sure. Bill McCarty has not been jumping much this spring on account of a sore heel incurred in an early meet. There was no telling how long his heel would last in case he did jump. But he did perform like the veteran he is and pulled off a leap of nearly 21 feet, which would qualify him in any league.

Don Hagerman won the shot. It is true, but he had some difficulty in accomplishing just that. It was not until he had barely qualified for the finals that he came through on his next to last throw. He was afraid of fouling and so held back on his early throws, but he let go with everything he had in the final and brought home the crown after all.

Besides the cups for the winning team and the winning relay four, very handsome gold, silver and bronze medals were awarded to the individual winners of the first three places. Arlington certainly brought home her share of the jewelry. The big cup now rests in a place of honor at the High School, and seven of the boys are sporting medals unless their sisters have flinched them by this time.

Anyone who saw the meet could not help but feel very sorry for Johnny O'Neil, one of the lion-hearted little Arlington milters. He got a tough break when he fell down on the first turn in the scramble and was trampled under foot. We saw that he "fell" out of charity to one of the other runners. He might have fallen, and then again he might have been tripped. At any rate, he was out of the race for good and all, but the little fellow kept plugging just the same, although he never had a chance after the first turn.

There are some faults which the critically inclined would be sure to find with the championship meet. In the first place, the track was like a plowed field, which is not strange, since it had actually been plowed the day before. The trouble was that it was then rolled without the very necessary wetting down. The result was that the runners were firmly convinced that they were camels on the Sahara.

Another thing—in spite of the condition of the track, some of the times were phenomenally fast. For instance, the hundred was clocked in 9.4-5 seconds, which leads one to wonder about the accuracy of the measurements. Not even Man-o-War could have run a hundred under ten seconds on that track.

Then, too, the 220 was run from a diagonal starting line on the corner instead of in lanes. The consequence of that was that the man on the outside could cut for the corner and be a mile ahead of the man on the pole right off the bat.

Still another thing—Bill McCarty might have done better in the hundred if it had not been for an unorthodox act on the part of the starter. Someone in his heat broke once and the field was called back by a second shot from the starter's gun. The same man broke a second time. In this instance the starter tried to fire his gun to restart the race, but the gun jammed and he jumped out into the track instead. The field rushed past him and he let them go. When one of

Arlington High Loses Second Game To Melrose

Baseball Team Loses in 10th, 7-5. Arlington Scores Five Runs in Eighth. Hederman and Barrett Get Three Hits Apiece.

For a second time this season, Melrose defeated Arlington in an overtime game. The home team was defeated, 7 to 5, although the boys came back in the last half of the eighth with 5 runs, to tie the game. That fifth inning rally was one of the finest ever staged here.

The Arlington attack was led by Jack Hederman, with two doubles and a single, and "Jumbo" Barrett, with 2 singles and a double.

Wallace started in the box for Arlington, but he was relieved by Lane in the third, when he was in a bad hole. One run had been made from his offerings through D'Etemont's home run. But before Lane could retire the side two runs were made. With one out in the third, they walked and Curley doubled. Wallace was then relieved by Lane and two passes and an error accounted for two runs. Lane was not properly warmed up, and so he was not wholly responsible for the passes.

Melrose brought the total to five in the seventh on a hit, two bases on balls, and another hit, which produced two runs.

At this stage of the game, which seemed almost hopelessly lost, Arlington garnered five runs. She got her first break when Curley hit by pitched ball Keough. Two-base hit—Hederman 2, Curley, Barrett, Hederman, D'Etemont, Stolen Bases—Barrett 2, Hederman 2, D'Etemont, Keough, Curley. Errors—Dolan, Clarke, Curley, O'Neil. Struck out—By Lane 6, by D'Etemont 8. By Weir 4. Bases on balls—By Lane 6, by Weir 2, by D'Etemont 3. Umpire—O'Conner. Time—2:15.

Dorrington scored on Clarke's infield rap.

Arlington lost her last beautiful chance to score in the ninth, when Barrett walked and Lane reached first on an error. Gallucci and Dorrington fanned, but Hederman was purposely walked, then Clarke failed to come through in the pinch for the first time this year.

Melrose took the game in the 10th on 4 hits, a walk and Weir's bunt along the first base line. Arlington could not score in the last half of the 10th, although Waters walked and Barrett hit.

ARLINGTON HIGH TRACK TEAM MYSTIC VALLEY CHAMPIONS

was fourth in the broad jump, an event in which he had not competed before. These three fellows are the unsung heroes of the meet.

Prettiest to watch were the quarter mile and the half mile runs. Each was raced in three heats and against time, which is a bad handicap to the Arlington runners who are all competitors. LeDoux was fortunate enough to get into a fast heat in the quarter. Thus, he was enabled to run a back race, putting on a terrific sprint for the last two hundred yards to take his heat and ultimately the event.

Bob Fleming was not so fortunate. He was in a slow heat and his sprint for the entire last lap to win his heat was not fast enough to win the event. In fact, the Arlington half mile race landed a third place only while his team mate, George Buckley, who won the preceding heat was fast enough to take second. The odd heat, in which no Arlington man placed, carried the winner, who was Field of Watertown.

At the beginning things certainly looked bad for Arlington. Capt. Phinney barely qualified for the finals of the hundred in the first heat, and Bill McCarty was shut out altogether in his heat. Then all that Phinney could manage in the final was a third place, which proved to be very valuable, but which was disappointing at the time.

A Heart Breaker
Then came the big heart breaker, the mile run. Johnny O'Neil of Arlington was slated to place well, even if he did not win, but he fell in the jam at the first turn, either by accident or otherwise, with the result that the leaders were 150 yards in the lead before he could get to his feet. Of course he could not make up that distance. Eddie Campbell of Arlington outdid himself to come in fourth but the result of the mile looked bad just the same. Coach McCarty was entitled to at least four points there, and he got one.

In the meantime, Watertown was way ahead in the shot put. Donald Hagerman's throws had not been up to his usual form, and both Hagerman and Pappas of Watertown were ahead of him. So the meet stood Melrose 8, Winchester 6, Watertown 5, and it looked as though Watertown would win at least 8 points to Arlington's 3 in the shot put. That would have made it Watertown 13, Arlington 6. But the worm turned. Don Hagerman pushed with all his considerable might, with no thought of fouling on his next to last throw, and his toss of 43 ft. 8 in. landed him in first place. That helped to change the complexion of things, and when Fran LeDoux stepped off his winning quarter mile, it was certain that Arlington Preferred had struck a substantial rise.

Arlington's stock went up 5 more points because of the Buckley-Fleming pool activities in the eight-eighty, but it stood stock still in the next event, which was the 220-yard dash. Big and husky "Skeek" Dineen found the going too soft to place, and Arlington experienced a decided set back. No direct loss was experienced, but Melrose went up eight points. If those eight points had gone to Watertown, Arlington would have been sunk altogether.

But the broad jump and the high jump gave Arlington another decided set back, so that in spite of the bear flurry in the closing minutes as a consequence of the relay failure, Arlington was at the top when the market closed.

One Great Leap
Bill leapt the leap of his career to clear 20 ft. 8 1/2 in. and to win first place. Bill's first jump of something more than eighteen feet was shaded by two of the opposition, but his second effort won him the gold medal. Bill Taintor added another point to Arlington's total in fourth place.

The high jump might well have decided the meet in Watertown's favor. She had two men who were

Winchester Golf Team Back In Second Place

The Winchester Country Club first golf team sneaked back into second place in the league Tuesday, when it eased through the match with Wollaston with a 7 1/2 to 4 1/2 victory. Charles River, in second place last week, was pushed back into third again, not by a marvelous victory on the part of the local club, but because of its own failure to defeat Brae Burn, the league leader.

The result of Winchester's match with Wollaston is rather unique. Every one of the four matches was halved until the last one was reached, and then the majority of points was swung to Winchester, when Phil Hendrick and Roland Smith won all three points from Reid and Fallon. They were the heroes of the day.

The members of the Winchester teams were all bothered by the strange greens. They were extremely fast and very accurate, but one would have had to practice for some time on them before doing very well.

The other members of the first team, Perley Chase and Leonard Wood, Win Jackson and Charlie Eaton, and Arthur Corwin and Bob Goodale, all divided their matches, 1 1/2 to 1 1/2.

The second team lost, 8 to 4, but it still holds its position in second place in the league standing. Not a single match was a victory.

Harold Wood and Frank Nazro held off Shea and Mahoney, 1 1/2 to 1 1/2. Sears Walker and Dick Rideout lost two points to Gallagher and Doyle. Percy Goodale and Don Conners lost all three to Connolly and Talbot and Sewell Newman and Doc Fisher divided with Raymond and Hopkins.

The Fire-Building and Camp Cooking Course for scout leaders, conducted by Sackem Council started last Saturday with 10 leaders at Camp Oak. Individual Cooking was the subject, under the leadership of Scout Executive Hans Kudlich of Cambridge Council. Each leader cooked his own meals and had to eat them. However, no one complained and everyone learned a heap about preparing savory meals in the open. The next meeting will be on June 21, under "Cap" H. B. Homer, Executive of Waltham Council and will be on Patrol Cooking.

Lewis Ballard, Assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 21, Lexington, since January, 1927, has been appointed leader of the Ranger Unit at Camp Sackem for the coming season. He is an unusually experienced leader and will keep the unit up to the high standard it reached last year.

Asst. Scoutmaster John Lottiman of Troop 10 has left scouting for the air service and is now training in South Carolina. He will be greatly missed by the boys of the troop.

nificant to us in that it keeps us from forgetting the achievements and sacrifices of the past."

The three definite steps that the world has taken on its onward march to democracy, Mr. Mark defined as "the destruction of the Prussian spirit of arrogance and aggression"; "the sense of unity which now prevails among nations"; and "the open-mindedness among nations."

"Let us forget", he concluded, "let us on this day made sacred by noble souls of the past again trace the workings of a Divine Providence in the history of our people to the end that our children might 'set their hope in God and forget not his words,' that they might 'keep his statutes and observe his laws forever'."

HOME OF MRS. MACCARTHY

Tuesday evening, Miss Margaret Harris of 18 Palmer street was tendered a shower at the home of Mrs. William J. MacCarthy, 65 Falmouth road. The many friends and relatives gathered early at the MacCarthy home and on the arrival of Miss Harris greeted her with a shower of paper streamers and confetti.

The house was lovely with the flowers and novelty paper decorations. In the living room, where the gifts were opened, a large wedding bell of white, arranged with sprays of bridal wreath, was placed in the middle of the room and under this Miss Harris stood and received a shower of white rose petals. Her gifts were lovely and numerous, and caused a great deal of admiration among the guests.

The dining room color scheme was green and gold. Here flowers, nut cups and novelties carried out the effect. A huge boat, conveying the idea of a successful adventure on matrimonial seas, was used on the table. Two cakes, one with a bridal bouquet and the other with a miniature bride and groom, were at the ends of the table. Coffee, sandwiches and cakes were served at the close of the evening.

Miss Harris is affianced to John Currie of Cambridge. Mr. Currie is instructor of French in the Cambridge High School. Miss Harris was for a number of years connected with the W. K. Hutchinson Stores, and recently with the Neapolitan Ice Cream Company. The couple plan a June wedding.

Flaherty, was the celebrant; Rev. Joseph P. Murphy, deacon, and Rev. Donald F. Simpson, sub-deacon. The many floral tributes showed the high esteem in which Mrs. Healy was held. Music for the service was by members of the church choir. At the close of the mass Mrs. John B. Driscoll sang "Pie Jesu". by Dorothy Church and Lucille Huestis, was also noteworthy. "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers", a tap dancing exhibition, was well done and very colorful, and the solo of Frances E. Rifechin was finely done. Constance MacNally with a little French Maid, Barbara Hatch, and Bell Hop, Kenneth Slade, presented a very lovely interpretation of glide, jazz and acrobatic dancing, to the tune of "Little Nelly Kelly".

The singing skit, "Hello Baby", featuring Barbara Hatch and Kenneth Slade, was amusing, and Kenneth Slade's "Is Everybody Happy?", with apologies to Ted Lewis, accorded a good hand.

Little Miss Barbara Hatch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hatch of 1188 Massachusetts avenue, again captivated the audience with a dance and vocal rendition of "Take a Little One-Step". Though she is only six years old, her dancing numbers fortell success. Not only do they evidence thorough drill in dancing routine, but they show a whimsical quality and stage presence that would credit to a much older dancer.

The groupwork of the Elwot Sextette and Klown Kut-ups was meritorious. The costumes were distinctive and very colorful, and the combinations of the groups, harmonious and artistic.

Other children taking part were: Norma A'Hern, Bessie Tsolakas, Claire Bennett, Edna Williams, Margaret O'Brien, Rita Daley, Theodore Hanson, Virginia D'Unker, Constance Higgins, Jean Adams, Jean MacMasters, Gloria Fredrickson, Lillian MacFadden, Marilyn Ruhl, Ruth O'Brien, Margaret Ivers, Claire Hudlett, Ray Collins, Mary Campabasso, Sonny Adams, Elizabeth Morse, Beatrice Kalanek, Beth Schroeder, Virginia Peabody, Theodore Hanson, Jean Ottley, Barbara Tsolakas, Jacqueline Hession, Florence Lopez, Edith Allen, Rita McConlogue, Elizabeth Morse, Beatrice Kalanek, Esther Kelley, Wallace Flynn, Constance Garland, Gertrude Garland, Buddy Schroeder, Edith Campbell, Rose Rogers, Priscilla Clancy, Elizabeth Rifechin, Frances Rifechin and Esther Kelley.

At the close of the evening, the beginners' and intermediate classes presented Miss Towle with a huge basket of flowers. Miss Towle also received many other flowers from her pupils and friends. A great many of the pupils were also presented with lovely bouquets from parents and friends.

It was regretted that so many of the pupils, about twenty-five in number, were unable to appear at the recital, because of illness. Special credit is given to the following who substituted: Barbara Hatch, Dorothy Church, Blanche Quinlan and Theodore Hanson.

The matrons of the evening were Mesdames Hatch, Church, A'Hern, Ottley, Nutter, MacFadden, Flynn, D'Unker, Adams, Collins, Slade, MacNally, Morse and Daly. The ushers were Messrs. Duffy, Raymond, Vincent, Warren, Pearse, Donald Schive and Lee Lamb. The music was furnished by Law's Society Orchestra, and Alma Stickle, the studio pianist, accompanied the pupils, assisted by the orchestra.

MISS BRITAIN'S HOME

IS SCENE OF SHOWER

Tuesday evening, Miss Lillian Anderson of Dorchester was tendered a shower by about twenty-five friends and office associates of the United-Carr Fastener Corporation of Cambridge, at the home of Miss Dorothy Brittain, 24 Cleveland street. The attractive decorations were pink and were in keeping with the shower. Miss Anderson received many lovely and useful gifts. Guests were present from Boston, Cambridge, Somerville, Dorchester, Hyde Park and Winton. At the close of the evening, ice cream and cake were served.

Miss Anderson is engaged to Mr. Arvid Corneliusen, also of the United-Carr Fastener Corporation

OLD BOOKS AT LIBRARY AN OLD HOME WEEK FEATURE

An exhibit of old books and of old pictures which have to do with the history of the Arlington library, are being arranged this week in the small reference room. This will include several interesting old books that are the property of the library, whose shelves they graced in the past. Among these are a few fascinating volumes which were possessed by the Arlington children of past generations, as well as a valuable history of Massachusetts by Governor Hutchinson. Old books loaned to the library will also be shown as well as other articles of historic interest. While this has been planned especially as a feature of Old Home Week, it will be continued for two or three weeks.

NEW PLAYGROUND TO BE CALLED PEIRCE FIELD

It was voted at the special Town Meeting Monday evening that the new playground in the rear of the High School building shall be called the Warren A. Peirce Field. Richard Powers made the motion after a short speech on the floor, in which he pointed out that Warren A. Peirce had probably done more for the town than any one living man. Curtis H. Waterman, the Moderator, declared the speaker out of order under article 7 of the warrant, but he put the motion to a vote, nevertheless, because he could see no possible opposition to such a suggestion. The result was a unanimous vote in the affirmative, so that Mr. Peirce will have his name and his works perpetuated in the form of an athletic field, even though his champion, Mr. Powers, was out of order.

—Miss Mary Ethel Wright, who helps out at Blake's Monday evenings, is spending a week in New York City as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Dreyer, formerly of Arlington.

"Papa I saved ten cents today. I ran all the way to school behind a street car."
"Why didn't you run behind a taxi and save a dollar."

Last Friday night was a large night for the Arlington Girl Scouts. Robbins Memorial Town Hall, where was held their annual rally, was crowded with their friends and admirers; every chair in the place was taken, there were many standing and the girls themselves, trig in their green uniforms, as well as some of their younger guests, sat on the floor in the center of the hall, which had been cleared for the Bugle and Drum Corps exhibition drill.

In honor of the Tercentenary, the program took the form of a pageant, written by Mrs. Leroy Shaw of Overlook road, which showed the girls of Arlington through the three centuries of the town's history, and in it were incorporated the usual features of the rally. The first episode, Camp Menotomy, showed an Indian teepee. Indian girls, sitting about the campfire, told how the Indian tribes had lost most of their property on the Mystic, having traded it to the Indians for one warm coat a year to be given to the Sachem. This was acted by Troop Six.

The second episode, "Pioneer Life", portrayed by Troop Seven, showed the girls in the gray and white of Puritan days gathered in the Sewing Circle busily quilting, hooking rugs and knitting. Their talk was of plucking geese and dipping cantiles. Indeed, their hearers were round eyed with awe at the amount of work a maid of those days accomplished.

"To and from Lexington" was acted by Troop Four. From a colonial doorway the maids of '75 saw the coming of the supply train by the Old Men of Menotomy. The Old Men ran across the stage. The girls were quick to aid a wounded red coat.

A Colorful Scene
The dance that celebrated the changing of Menotomy's name to West Cambridge in 1807 was the next colorful scene, in which members of Troop One appeared. The dancing of the Virginia reel, the "Soldiers' Delight" and, particularly, "Pop Goes the Weasel", were greeted with applause. Interesting, too, were the rules of behavior

WELFARE COUNCIL HEARS ABOUT BOSTON DISPENSARY

Those who attended the annual open meeting of the Arlington Welfare Council, which was held last Friday morning in the Hearing Room of the Robbins Memorial Town Hall, enjoyed the talk on the Boston Dispensary which was given by Miss Elizabeth Rice of the social service department of that institution.

Miss Rice reviewed the history of the Dispensary from 1796, when public spirited Boston citizens contributed funds so that poor people in need of medicine might get it free at an apothecary shop in School Square. Next the services of a doctor were secured for those too ill to visit the shop and too poor to secure medical services. In 1814 there was added a nurse who received thirty-five cents a day for her services, and, in 1814, bathing facilities for the poor. These proved so popular that this branch was before long taken care of by the city, which established public baths. In 1856 the Dispensary moved into its present quarters on Bennett street, where it has fourteen regular clinics, a laboratory and an X-ray service.

The clinics include the regular morning clinics which are held every day, evening clinics three times a week—for these $1.60 is charged for the first visit and one dollar for every visit thereafter—and a physical examination clinic. The Dispensary also maintains district physicians for those who are too poor to employ a private physician and too sick to attend the clinic. For such cases there is also a community health nurse.

Social Service
Social service is considered an important part of the institution's work. The social service worker at the desk determines whether the patient should be admitted to the clinic as those who can afford to go to private doctors are not admitted. As nothing is worse for a patient than worrying about bills, an effort is made to charge only what he can afford to pay—the service is free if he cannot afford to pay anything. The social worker determines what the fee shall be. She also talks with every patient to make sure there are no social problems which may retard his recovery. If there are such problems an effort is made to solve them in such a way as to benefit the patient. These points she illustrated by the stories of two cases where the social worker made effective the treatment ordered by the physician.

The future of the Dispensary Miss Rice outlined as that of the New England Medical Center which will draw together the Floating

Mary Chambers Wins Legion Essay Prize

The essay contest at Arlington High School, which the local post of the American Legion has been sponsoring through A. Joseph Chisholm and Arthur Peirce, has finally been judged and the winners announced. The fortunate ones are Mary Chambers, first; Dorothy Markle, second; Phyllis McCabe, third; Olga Webster, fourth. Rev. John Nicol Mark of the First Parish church and Chaplain of the post, presented the prizes yesterday morning at the high school.

A corps of fifteen judges, including five members of the English Department of Boston English High School, ranked the 155 papers which were turned in from the senior class. Among the judges were Nathaniel Hasenfratz, Earl M. Benson, William J. Royce, John P. Sullivan and Norman A. Moss.

The awards themselves consist of a gold medal for the winner, a silver medal for the runner-up and honorable mention for the other two of the four. Every one of the contestants wrote their essay on "What Memorial Day Means to Me". The essay written by Mary Chambers, who won first prize, appears below. The other three essays will probably appear in succeeding weeks.

Mary Chamber's essay:

"What Memorial Day Means to Me"

A fog hung smoky over the town. In spite of the close dampness, little clumps of people stood on the curbstone all along the main street. Now and then an eye glanced toward the clock on the steeple. The Memorial Day Parade was due any minute.

Down in front of the G. A. R. Post an army of excited Boy Scouts milled around, waiting to be called to order. A handful of World War veterans and four trim officers stood sturdily in their heavy uniforms. Veterans of America's Civil War stepped, briskly, down the parade. A dozen men gathered around one straight blue figure and argued with him. He coughed against the back of his hand; he shook his head, smiling. They couldn't tell him that there was any connection between a cold, fog and danger. The men moved away anxiously.

At last every one was in his place. The drummers settled their straps. The buglers moistened their lips. The fife screamed through the fog, leaving a thunder of drums in their wake, and the parade started. Battalions in France, a hill in Cuba, a dry mouthed charge in the shattered south swamp in the flags' red stripes, and the Boy Scouts imitated their elders' strides.

All through the day, marching to the Town Hall, standing in the cemetery, the gallant old soldier tried to choke his wracking cough, held bravely to his idea of a fighting man's duty and endurance.

A week later, under a hot June sun, three Grand Army veterans walked silently down from the cemetery, where their too gallant comrades lay. "Under the sod and the dew, waiting the judgment day." So always, from the first day these men went out to draw the states together with their lives, they have acted as befitting loyal soldiers, with unswerving self-sacrifice.

Story of the Library

Book Lists Published

The next catalogue issued in January, 1889, was a consolidation of those of previous years and separate lists and was known as an Author-and-Title Dictionary Catalogue. It is difficult to estimate the amount of time and labor spent on a catalogue of this size in addition to everyday duties and interruptions. The work should be accurately done if the catalogue is to serve its purpose. I had some trained assistance from my father who had been a printer by trade. Charles S. Parker & Son, whose office was then conveniently located in Swans' Block, took the matter in charge and issued a fine looking book. Libraries generally are discontinuing these catalogues on account of the expense. Our card catalogue was of the greatest assistance in preparing it. Through the courtesy of Mr. Parker, short lists of new books added to the Library were printed in the Arlington Advocate, which custom has been continued to the present day.

In the Town Report for 1889 we read that "By permission of the Selectmen, a title-list of books added in 1889 is printed with this report." This alphabetical title-list was made up from those published in the Advocate and in this way was circulated with the Town Report. This custom continued until 1901 when there was no longer room for it. From that time until 1922 we had a separate Supplement printed. It was then considered too expensive.

In March, 1890, Miss Fessenden resigned. She had been a faithful assistant for eight years and to quote from the Trustees' Report, "Her uniform courtesy and readiness to oblige as well as her diligent performance of duty, made her departure a subject of general regret." Miss Nettie E. Baston served for a short time this year, returning later for a long period in the new building and Miss Edith A. Whittemore began her career first as a counter assistant and later as the competent head of the department. At Arlington Heights the weekly delivery of books in charge of Miss Lucy C. Bailey was continued until her removal from town in December, when Mr. H. S. Russell took her place.

A $5,000 Legacy

In 1891 on account of continued absence abroad, Mr. Trowbridge resigned from the Board of Trustees and was succeeded by Mr. Joseph C. Holmes of Arlington Heights. As a Branch Reading Room was established in May of that year in Crescent Hall at the Heights with Miss M. Macle Seabury as Librarian, it was conveniently supervised by Mr. Holmes. It was open three afternoons and evenings during the week and a delivery of books from the main library was made twice a week. In this year, a legacy of $5,000 was received from the estate of the late Deacon Henry Mott which was a welcome addition to our slender resources. The fund was temporarily invested in a loan to the town of Arlington at four per cent interest. At this time the Trustees expressed their thanks to Mr. Charles S. Parker for his gift of a complete file of the Arlington Advocate from 1872 which has been continued to the present day, making valuable reference material for the student of local history.

In July, 1891, in response to an invitation from members of my family in Europe, the Trustees kindly granted me a leave of absence to join the family until November. I saw something of Holland, Belgium and France—a most welcome change from everyday duties. In the Paris National Library I found the catalogues chained to the desks and I was given a printed form to show when I passed out that my Guide Book belonged to myself and not to the Library.

Arlington has prepared for a week's celebration in honor of the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary, during the week of June 1.

This town has accepted the spirit of Old Home Week for its activities and a cordial and earnest invitation to everyone who enjoys the memories of other days spent here. These invitations have been sent out by the churches and other organizations.

The churches in Arlington, as well as elsewhere in the state, will observe the significance of the Tercentenary on June 1, as far as is consistent with their regular services.

In the evening at 7.30, a Civic and Patriotic Meeting will be held in Robbins Memorial Town Hall. This will be conducted more like our Forum Meetings, than a religious meeting and Mr. John Jackson Walsh, President of the Tercentenary Incorporated, will be the orator. His subject will be "The Great Migration". Mr. Walsh will have an important part in the great interdenominational meeting on Boston Common at 4 p. m., and hence the meeting here was scheduled for the evening.

On June 3, the committee will cooperate with the Chamber of Commerce and furnish music for their final meeting of the year at the Middlesex Sportsman's Association building, which will be decorated the entire week. Prof. Arthur W. Peirce, Headmaster of Dean Academy and a former resident of Arlington, will be the guest speaker. He will give some reminiscences of other days in Arlington. Reed's Orchestra will furnish the music. Everyone is cordially invited to attend; both men and women. Tickets for the dinner must be obtained in advance. Members' tickets are 75 cents; others, $1.00, and they are on sale at 675 Massachusetts avenue.

Athletic Meet

June 4, the schools will hold a big athletic meet on Spy Pond Field, under the direction of Mr. Earl H. Thompson, Director of athletics in our schools. There will also be Folk Dances and May pole dances, and games by the boys and girls.

It is planned to have a reception to former residents and guests at the Club House from 5 to 6.30 p. m.

Sandwiches, ginger ale, etc., will be provided for those who wish to obtain something to eat at the field.

The famous "Stetson Shoe Band" of Weymouth Post, No. 79, American Legion, with George William Ventre conducting, will furnish music for the band concert between 6.30 and 9.30 p. m. They will play the following selections:

March, "The National Spirit", Hummel; Overture, "Poet and Peasant", Suppe; Selection, "Robin-hood", Weigl; Trumpet Solo, "The Carnival of Venice", Mr. Burke; Concert Waltz, "The Blue Danube", Strauss; Descriptive, "The Hunting Scene", Boccassini; Overture, "Hungarian Comedy", Kellabella; March, "Grandioso", Seltze; Popular Selection, "Rio Rita", Arr. Lake; Suite, "Ballet Egyptian", Luigini; Selection, "Victor Herbert's Favorites", Herbert; Patriotic Medley, "United We Stand", Hayes; "The Star Spangled Banner". Popular songs and marches will be used for encores.

On June 6 at 8 p. m., the Historic Festival of American Music will be given in the Town Hall and repeated Saturday afternoon and evening, June 7. This will be one of the notable events of the summer. Complimentary tickets may be obtained at the Tercentenary Committee's Headquarters, 675 Massachusetts avenue, opposite the Library.

Music Festival

The Pageant takes the form of a series of episodes depicting the growth of music in America and represents in 12 scenes 300 years of American music.

Approximately 300 people will take part. To accommodate the number of performers, the Junior High School Centre, behind the Town Hall, will serve as a dressing room. Members of the cast will pass to and from the stage in the Town Hall to the Junior High School along a covered walk.

Members of the Committee who are in charge of the undertaking, are: Mrs. James A. Bailey, Mrs. Frank D. Sawyer, Miss Grace Gordon Pierce, Mrs. C. Frederic Evans, Mrs. Cyrus E. Dallin.

The Arlington Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Grace Gordon Pierce, consisting of many of Arlington's foremost musicians and re-enforced by a number of outsiders, will furnish the instrumental music, while a large chorus

GARAGES QUICKLY BUILT FROM CONCRETE BLOCKS

The building of modern garages with concrete blocks is now an accepted method of construction; first, because they are easily and quickly handled, insuring rapid building; second, because they are weather resisting and third, because they are less expensive than any other building material when these other two features are considered.

This should appeal especially to owners of automobiles who are storing their cars in neighboring garages because they consider the erection of garages on their own property an expensive proposition. As a matter of fact the building of a concrete block garage will prove a money saver and an investment which will earn dividends after the first cost is paid.

Nemo Patent, manufacturer of concrete blocks, is prepared to make prompt deliveries on all orders received now and to insure the erection of your garage in short order. A specialty of his is also the building of brick garages and fireplaces. He does work in Boston, Somerville, Cambridge and Arlington.

A telephone call to Arlington 0869 will bring full particulars and prices on the construction of garages and fireplaces.

JOSEPH H. ROCKETT KNOWN FOR SERVICE IN HIS LINE

Once in so often the Grim Reaper takes out of the family circle some loved one and it becomes the sacred duty of those who remain to administer to the departed, those last sad but necessary services. It is no easy task to carry out these details. But the modern undertaker and embalmer has achieved such remarkable perfection of service, that he not only administers the last services to prepare for the burial, but also takes charge of the thousand and one details which arise at such times.

He it is who sees to it that the arrangements are made for the church services and private services, that the proper death notices are given to the press, and that the funeral is carried out smoothly and decorously.

Tact and perfect equipment, supplemented of course by an accurate and extensive knowledge of his craft, is needed at that time. Such a man is Joseph H. Rockett, whose office is located at 127 Massachusetts Avenue and his residence at 38 Grafton Street. His telephone number is Arlington 4463-R and 4463-W.

ARLINGTON LUNCH FILLS NEED FOR QUICK SERVICE

For quick and efficient service, the present-day dining car is a boon to the business man. The early riser, the many who must stay out late each night, and the hundreds of persons who mill the streets during the rush hours of the day, find the Arlington Lunch car at the Railroad Crossing a good place to eat. Speed in service, coupled with a high-grade menu, are the foundations upon which the Arlington Lunch has built its wide patronage.

Many people sigh when they think of eating in restaurants continuously. But Paradise Brothers, owners of the Arlington Lunch, serve the same people day after day, which is a proof that they are well served. Don't forget, then, to try the Arlington Lunch, conveniently located at the Railroad Crossing.

MONUMENTS BIG PROBLEM

When considering a marker or monument for the family burial lot, a desire for permanency is foremost. Here will remain inscribed the names and data of the loved ones. Like the most durable of monuments must stand the wear of weather and time, with quality and workmanship the essentials. The material and the design must be of the finest. By this enduring symbol of love and reverence, the highest emotions of the heart are stirred.

The granite and marble used by Tutten Bros. are perfect for memorial use. They have beauty of color and their texture is even and permits the most delicate carving. Tutten Brothers are located at 27 Canal Street, West Medford, where there is power driven machinery for cutting and facing granite.

Price is a consideration in every business purchase at bottom. Attention to details will insure no annoyance to the purchaser after he has given the order.

Mr. E. W. Tutten and Mr. J. L. Tutten will both be ready to cooperate with you in your selection and they will gladly give you estimates on different types and materials.

MONEY AND THE MARKETS

(Published by courtesy of Kidder Peabody & Co. Taken from "Dividends", the monthly booklet published by them.)

The failure of the stock market to continue its specialized advance without interruption through the month of April may, perhaps, be interpreted as indicating a general uncertainty regarding the immediate future for business. The reduced earnings which were quite generally reported by the railroads and a large number of industrial concerns for the first quarter of this year give a concrete idea of the considerable decline in activity that has been experienced. Some of the reduction in railroad earnings may probably be attributed to increased charges resulting from the pushing forward of construction programs as urged by the President at a time when, lacking external stimulus, the railroads would perhaps have been marking time pending an improved outlook. There still remains, nevertheless, ample evidence of a prevailing low level of railroad traffic. Most of the problems now besetting industry, such as the widespread excess production of raw materials, are of a fundamental nature and it is not surprising that the situation has not been corrected in short order. Although the recent slump in business came quite suddenly, factors such as the decline in commodity prices were observed somewhat in advance and to some extent prepared the way of it. It is reasonable to expect, therefore, that a correspondingly extended period may be necessary for complete rehabilitation.

That the sharp break in the price of copper was overdue is generally admitted and, for this reason, the reduction may be looked upon as a corrective measure that would necessarily have to be adopted before a change for the better could be expected. A price weakness in iron and steel has been noticeable recently, while the indices of production and consumption are substantially unchanged—with the prospect of a seasonal increase in demand from the automobile industry. The future of other price levels remains uncertain as a result of the failure of the general average to hold the improved position established a few weeks ago.

There have recently been several significant changes of policy on the part of price-regulating bodies. The abandonment by the large copper producers of their artificial price structure which was successfully maintained for about a year is paralleled by the dissolution of the Cuban Co-operative Export Agency, popularly known as the "Single Seller." This organization was formed in an attempt to bring some relief to the Cuban producers who, having a hard struggle to operate on a profitable basis. The results of its operations do not augur too well for similar experiments now going on in this country. It is too early, however, to condemn the efforts of the recently established agencies for farm relief. On the contrary, they should be given every chance and all possible encouragement until the issue has been definitely settled for or against them.

There have recently been published comprehensive figures showing the state of our foreign trade during the year 1929. We find that a new high point of over nine billion dollars for combined exports and imports was reached in that period, in spite of the fact that during the last three months of the year there was a sharp falling off in sympathy with the general business decline. The decrease toward the year end was due largely to smaller exports of raw cotton and grains, together with the decline in price of these commodities which, of course, reduced the dollar value of the shipment. The growth of our total trade, which has continued quite steadily for a number of years, has been due in large measure to a sustained increase in the aggregate value of imports and to the greatly augmented exports of manufactured goods. The group comprising finished and semi-finished manufactures and manufactured foodstuffs accounted for about three-quarters of our total exports for last year. Exports of machinery of all kinds also increased with agricultural and electrical equipment in a prominent position. Automobile manufacturers in this country have been relying to an increasing degree upon foreign buying. On the import side of the picture there has been no appreciable shifting of the importance of different classifications. The increasing importance of our world trade as outlined above again brings to mind the growing dependence of this country upon other nations for the maintenance of prosperous conditions.

The movement of our money markets in sympathy with those of other important countries again points to the closeness of commercial relations between countries. Money rates of the principal European central banks have declined to levels rarely reached since the beginning of this century, and the recent reduction in the rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank from 4% to 3% marks the second time in the history of the institution that this low point has been reached. Various reasons have been given for this further easing of credit conditions, those most prominently mentioned being: the imminence of the Young Plan financing, the world-wide decline in business, and the desire on the part of the authorities here and abroad to further a recovery in business in every possible way. While low interest rates may surely be considered favorable rather than the reverse, they cannot be depended upon as a complete cure for all of the present ills. As previously suggested, the problem is not a simple one, but rather one requiring patience and a reasonable amount of time for the working out of a solution.

DISCONNECT RADIO BEFORE CHANGING CONNECTIONS

For safety it is a wise precaution to disconnect the radio from the household electricity supply before handling the tubes or interior wiring of the set according to a statement issued by the National Safety Council.

Internal connections in the standard electrically operated radio sets are well protected and insulated to render them harmless during normal operation. Making changes, however, in connections, inside adjusting or extending high voltage circuits outside of the set, by means of adapters or special leads, may result in severe electrical shock or damage to the set.

In practically all of the standard sets it is possible to make contact with internal parts operating at 1,000 volts or more while connected to a 115 volt lighting circuit. Step-up transformers within alternating current sets are designed to produce this high voltage which is necessary in the functioning of the set.
